Interstellar Goals (Mad Goals)

- What are your highest and craziest goals?
 - Aim higher than ever before.
 - Think about what makes you mad in life and why it bothers you. For example, high crime or lack of privacy. What type of goals will help you here?
 - What are the things people said you will never attain?

Drawing a Mind Map as a Roadmap

- Draw your Mind Map
 - This is your roadmap.
 - It is not linear.
 - It shows you how events are possibly interlinked.
 - It shows you that the whole picture is made up of doable parts.

Rejection plan

- What is your plan when they say no or when you can't get in?
 - Do you have alternate plans to get to the same goals?
 - How soon can you start on your new and adjusted tasks in your plan?
 - Go back to your roadmap and work on another section. If there isn't one then sketch one added to the bigger picture. Like an extra appendage.

Evaluation (repeat or adapt)

- Which steps worked? Repeat those.
 - Which steps failed? Adjust or cut them out.
 - Do you need a hybrid plan? If so adjust.
 - Are you in a dip? Rest and recover until you feel ready with another strategy.
 - Ask from others how they coped at this stage.
 - Be willing to do what it takes- learn whatever specific set of skills you didn't have to get to where you want to be next.

Victory plan-Consistency plan and rewards

- Congratulations! You are a winner!
 - What will you do to keep up the blessings?
 - You've gotten this far so consistency was a huge thing to conquer. Do less.
 - Find ways to have highly productive days flanked by rest days.
 - What is your ideal work week? Less days right? Go for it steadily over 2 or 3 months!

The Future: Beyond gains and losses

- You will gain and you will lose.
 - Be wise with your time and money.
 - Live simply.
 - Don't waste.
 - Don't be extravagant.
 - Share where you can.
 - Keep going. Renew/repair where you have to.
